THE TRIBUNE.

Instead of the grace which we have for the last their teachings to the wider relations of life. two days been quietly expecting from this gentleman, we received yesterday a very courteous and bis counsel, Mr R. Cooper, in relation to our obnoxious publication. We should be most happy to publish this letter, but, considering that it is o e doing. Suffice it, then, that it very civilly calls on us for a "retriction" of what was said, not by us, but by our Fonda correspondent, consisting of a libel which was not defended, have settled that ase, we cannot regard it as any more a libel than grieved by any thing we had published, he had only to write us, pointing out the errors, and we should have published his letter most cheerfully. This we do uniformly, as a matter of right and principle, in every case of alleged grievance from statements in our columns. Instead of this, the first comdirected a prosecution to be commenced against against Mr. Weed to a default on the first and then time. And now, as the very best amende to Mr. Cooper that we can make, we publish his own ver sion of the affair, which is as follows:

New-York Tribune, and Albany Evening Journal, having both published false statements concerning the proceedings connected with the at the late Montgomery circuit, I ask room for the ollowing statement of facts.

The cause was first naticed for trial in May last Weed then appeared without counsel, and asked for delay on the plea that he had forgetten that the cause had been noticed! The judge ranted a delay of six months on this plea, saving at the time that the application was exceedingly
